

Sustainability of Culture - The greatest challenge of the 21st century What are the Limits?

The Sustainability as well as the end of a Culture is always caused by the mainstream school of thoughts inside this Culture.

All cultures have similar periodical stories built on their own philosophy, religion or ideology, made by their own school of thoughts.

Practically all cultures were, till now, a tentative to maintain alive the social pyramidal system.

They use a primitive or a sophisticated slavery system with the same result: pushing them down to barbarism. In addition, such slavery systems are working against the human fundamental values.

In front of this, the sustainability of a culture becomes short and shorter so much as the communication becomes fast and faster around the Globe.

The human fundamental values are the feelings, thoughts, actions and things supporting the understanding and the competence to an aesthetical and ethical life.

Up to now The Global Consumers' Culture is the winner, but nevertheless this Culture:

- provides abundance to the minority and distress to the main part of the mankind
- made the conquest of the ancient European culture, what based on the ancient Greek-Roman and Judeo-Christian cultures
- made the conquest of the communist culture
- is going to make conquest of others ancient Cultures (China, Japan and Muslim world (I'm sorry))

My observation is the following: where “The Global Consumers' Culture” wins, after +- ten years, the biggest part of the people becomes more individualistic and decadent, only the less part of people tries to save his personal integrity and self-determination, and seeking for an issue.

Why and how “The Global Consumers' Culture” is destroying human values?

The Global Consumers' Culture can maintain an existence only if it forces the planned short-wear-out junk-products on mankind. This system can work only if people can't make the difference between a junk product and a quality product.

The System can disorder the ability to make difference between junk and lasting quality through education and media.

And the man, who can't make difference, can't be sensible and smart and so he becomes barbarous.

We are fascinated by the huge results of engineer's sciences: skyscrapers, telecommunications, ballistic missiles, automotives industries, computer science, etc...

These results demonstrate that engineers have learned useful data in the universities.

The obscure results of human sciences demonstrate that some false basic data are present in their knowledge.

In consequence our wonderful technological civilization, handled by a decadent humanity, get Chernobyl, Fukushima, oil catastrophes, garbage continents on the oceans, etc.

The social make-up, "Look well and feel well!" can't smother up the falling trends of humanity.

The basic data of the System are fancy by a professor to Leipzig University, Wilhelm Wundt in the XIX century, who took in the psychology, that the man is only a stimulus-reaction animal, without soul.

The founders of this World System use these false data, and themselves and all we suffer from the aftermath.

The orchestra is playing, the Titanic is sinking.
